The A.T. Henry Building is an imposing two story brick commercial structure occupying the northwest corner of First and F Streets. The building features a bracketed cornice and ten segmental arch bays (five on the main facade, one over the corner entrance, and four on the south facade), all of which are accented by brick window caps. The corner entrance is defined by the bay on the second floor and at the cornice by a triangular shaped roof ornament framing a sunburst design. Pilasters rising from ground level to the cornice divide the facade and demark the separate business establishments.

In 1886 the building housed a bank, the Chaffee County Bank, and a stationary and insurance office.
